SOCIETY WORLD

COCKTAIL CHITCHAT: After six months in their posh, custom-built Bahamas home, New Yorkers Atty. Grant and Lil Reynolds have hung out a "For Sale" sign and returned stateside. . . . Artist-fashion designer Lilyn Ford staged a fantastic SRO fashion show for the breezy Point Yacht Club of Amityville, L. I. Theme of the show was "Save A Dollar Fashions." This was the club's first fashion show to raise money for its building fund. Several husbands bought the show's evening gowns as gifts for their wives. The most creative outfit—a 'costume of the future'—was designed for wear in five ways in one day—morning swim, jogging, at the office, for dinner and a formal evening. . . . New Yorkers Inez and George Clarke hosted an after-theater party in honor of Lucille Boswell, corporate consultant of the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Los Angeles, and Jessie Mae Beavers, women's editor of the Los Angeles Sentinel and president of the local City Human Relations Commission. Among those who feasted on a buffet "soul" dinner consisting of champagne and chitterlings, pig's feet, collard greens, black-eyed peas, rice, and okra and tomatoes topped off by homemade strawberry cheesecake were: Author Louise Merriweather of Printers Hall Publishing Co., Terri Bush, Mrs. Grady (Vivian) Tate, Minnie Ferrer of Co-op City, Viena Johnson of Nassau, Bahamas, and Mrs. Katie Larry of Elmhurst, Queens, who was the hostess to these two ladies during their week's stay in the "Big Apple."
